Wednesday, August 4

Time: 7:00am-8:30am

Speaker: Mary Lange, IBAT Education Foundation

Topic: The Keys to Building Financially Literate Communities

While Congress debates financial reform measures on a national level, every state and local community is delving into the detail of their own financial houses – from state government, to schools, to small businesses, to city government, to families, to couples, to individuals. While we can discuss our children's grade point averages openly, we whisper credit scores and student loan payback schedules.

Mary will set out some basic keys of financial education to assist in creating the new foundation for financially literate communities. And yes, it starts with the individual taking responsibility for his or her own actions.

About Our Speaker:

Mary Lange is President of the IBAT Education Foundation within the Independent Bankers Association of Texas (IBAT).

In this position, she is responsible for the management of IBAT's philanthropic arm, which focuses on ways Texas community bankers can lead the way in building financially literate communities. The Foundation helps connect community bankers with proven financial education programs and local schools. It also designs and delivers IBAT's banker education program of work which focuses exclusively on community banking needs.

Before joining IBAT in 1989, Mary served as executive director of the American Institute of Banking-Central Texas.
